INTRODUCTION

A trusted mentor of mine said he believed "there is nothing unique to the world of words, they've all been used and reused and mixed throughout the dawn of time". In a sense, I was sad to hear him confess this although I disagreed and argued that a different pattern to the same words could be considered unique and new, especially to the audience of those words. Although we never concluded our debate, his perspective propelled me to share this small journal type book with all of you.

The words themselves may not be unique to your vocabulary yet the way they are used may provoke you to take action. Bottom line, throughout this diet of a book, how can these used up words help you change the way you see this moment, this hour, this day, this year or lets go bigger, this life you are leading?

I write these words with thought of momentum and leave you with the chance to write your beliefs towards a WORLD OF CHANGE.
